Will this young man remember the good old days? He is playing in a plastic cube in the Glenfield Baptist Church where the College of DuPage child development center is located.

Child Center open for summer term

The College of DuPage Child Development Center will have a summer program for children ages 3-5 from June 11 through Aug. 17.

Robert Brockob, center director, said there will be two daily sessions, one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

The center, located in the Glenfield Baptist Church on Lambert Road, will be open from 8:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m.

Most children, Brockob said, are at the center for three hours, three days a week.

The cost of the program is 70 cents an hour and a $10 materials fee.

As one of the full time staff is a working artist, Brockob said, the children will have a chance to do more than finger paint. An emphasis is being placed on arts and crafts, making the materials fee necessary.

The center tentatively plans to have a small swimming pool with instructors.

Trips to forest preserves, airports, zoos, and the arboretum are scheduled, Brockob said.

With three full-time staff and volunteer helpers from the college, Brockob said there will be a ratio of one adult to every five children.

Brockob said that being able to draw on the resources of the college is one reason that the Child Development Center has done so well.

Besides youth energy, the center can use films from the LRC, and take the children to watch carpenters, or athletes, he said.

Brockob said there are 120 children registered in center for the regular program, begun in January.

Frampton gives concert May 15

Headliner Peter Frampton, founder and former lead guitarist of the British rock group, "Humble Pie," will give a concert in the Campus Center Tuesday, May 15, at 9 p.m.

Frampton's group, "Frampton's Camel," will give C/D's students and friends a last-of-the-season chance to really blow off steam, according to Larry Apperson, program adviser, and Mike Brady, co-chairman of the concert.

The rock group is blues-oriented and has many acoustical numbers in its musical arrangements.

The backup group, to play before Frampton, is "Dirt Farm." Tickets are $1.00 for C/D students; $2.00 for students from other schools and $2.50 general admission at the door. Tickets are available at the Student Activities Office.

10% to 20% hike in food prices seen likely here by fall term

A 10 to 20 per cent increase in the price of food might occur next September to meet rising costs faced by campus food services.

An analysis of food service operations, sought by the board of trustees, was presented Wednesday night by John Paris, vice president, operations. A price increase was one means suggested to reduce the deficit.

Trustee Eugene Bailey suggested that McDonald's be contacted to see if they would run a food service. Bailey said that McDonald's operates successfully and that many people like their food.

Food services, according to Paris, has been losing $4,000 a month. The analysis states, "For the last two years the deficit has been directly related to the following factors: rising labor costs; extended hours of operation; inadequate facilities."

Besides reducing labor costs, by laying off personnel, by adjusting types of food prepared, food services has placed more reliance on vending machines.

Ernest Gibson, director of food services, said that 15 to 20 per cent of the revenue comes from vending machines.

Other means can be used to reduce expenses, according to the analysis, are shortening hours of service from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and increasing storage facilities next year.

However, the board took no formal action and will consider the matter again in three months.

A Faculty Senate resolution was brought to the attention of the board by Dr. Rodney Berg, college president. It calls upon the board to pass a resolution asking the Illinois Board of Higher Education to exert control upon senior institutions who desire to reclassify 100 and 200 courses to upper division levels.

Berg said that this matter should be brought to the attention of the Board of Higher Education, but added he had doubts if this was the best way to do it.

The Board delayed action for further study.

David Strachan, political science instructor, and Roger Liska, associate provost of Delta, requested the board accept their resignations.

Liska has accepted a position with Auburn University, beginning September 1. Strachan has been on a professional leave this past academic year.

Teacher local meets May 16

By Richard Schneider

There are enough C/D faculty enrolled in a local teachers' union for it to request a charter with a collective bargaining group, according to Bruce Benson, instructor and spokesman for the new local union.

The Faculty Senate unanimously passed May 1 a resolution to place collective bargaining on the agenda of the May 21 Faculty Association meeting.

Benson said, "Interest in collective bargaining is not something new. The Faculty Association passed a resolution three years ago that could have taken the faculty toward collective bargaining."

Benson said a meeting will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday, May 16, in J147, to elect temporary officers, discuss charter procedures and a constitution for the union.

A spokesman from the Chicago City College Teachers' union will be present to answer questions on how to get started.

A local union must be formed before a decision can be made on what bargaining group the local might join, Benson said. If the faculty wanted collective bargaining, he said, there are a number of groups the C/D local could join.

According to Benson, a preliminary survey of faculty taken last week showed a majority of those surveyed favored collective bargaining.

One reason for a bargaining agent is that faculty would then have a source of experts to advise them in drawing up a contract, he said.

To stagger fall classes on hour, 1/2-hour basis

Classes meeting in Instructional Unit No. 1, the new campus, will start on the hour and classes being held on the interim campus will begin on the half hour fall quarter.

This decision was reached by the Educational Program Administrators Friday, May 4.

Dr. John Anthony, vice president, programs, said that a half hour interval between classes would give a student sufficient time to get from one campus to the other.

Anthony said the time interval would help with traffic flow and parking.

He also said a scheduled time, late in the day, when no classes would be held, is being considered. This would give people a chance to get together, who would otherwise be traveling back and forth between campuses.

Navy medic retrain for new career in printing

By Lillian Petronio

After Hal Wymore returned from four years of service in the U.S. Navy, he found he had a personal war of his own to fight.

That battle is nearly over.

This week he returns to what he called his first love, the field of lithography. He will start working for Ames Supply Co., wholesalers of repair parts, tools, equipment and accessories for dealers and repairmen working on any make of typewriter and adding machine. The 70-year-old firm is the largest of its kind in the nation. He will be working toward a position as printing department supervisor.

Since Wymore had enjoyed his high school major work in Graphic Arts, he tried for Lithography Mate in the Navy. When he learned that position was filled, he turned to his second love — medical corpsman.

After studying and training at Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Wymore served on board the U.S.S. Repose, which was the only hospital ship in the Vietnam waters at the time. The Repose had a 500-bed capacity and was used as an emergency evacuation unit. Wymore also helped care for the men who were injured when the U.S. aircraft carrier Forrestal caught fire off the Vietnam coast July 29, 1967.

Wymore recalled how the Repose, which was anchored out in the harbor off Da Nang, in accordance with the Geneva Conventions, suddenly sailed away in a big hurry. The next day Wymore learned that Viet Cong frogmen were found in the waters near the Repose.

After leaving the Navy, Wymore worked in St. Joseph's Hospital in Aurora for more than two years, and at the Delnor Hospital in St. Charles for a year, as an inhalation therapy technician.

While working at St. Joseph's Hospital, he met his wife Bernadine, an R.N. They have one son, Kevin, 11 months.

"Working in the hospitals was good experience," he said, "I learned much, and I was a helluva lot less busy than I was on the Repose."

But Wymore found he was restricted in his duties in the civilian hospitals. "A great deal of money was spent on my education for the naval hospital work, and I could not use that training and experience in the civilian hospitals," he said.

After much thought, he decided to return to his studies in Graphic Arts. He said that it was not easy for him to leave the medical field, but he saw his work in the hospitals as being very limited.

At present, he is almost finished with the printing courses at C/D. He said that after he starts his new position, he will continue with his studies at C/D in the evening.

"The courses at C/D are excellent, and they are very closely related to what will be found in industry," Wymore explained.

He believes that there will always be a need for a good printer and he considers it a good trade. He sees Graphic Arts as an ever-changing, interesting work. "I enjoy learning the new techniques. I believe it is the most widely changing field in industry," he said.

Propose athletic advisory committee

A proposal was made to the Representative Assembly Tuesday to form an Athletic Advisory Committee for each sport.

Presently there are no such committees and the status of the athletic committee is in doubt. One group has urged the Assembly to abolish it.

The new proposal listed 13 reasons for forming the committees.

Some of these are: to improve public support of the athletic teams, to help develop and improve the sports program, to provide a communication channel from the sports department to the students and the public, and to aid in evaluating the present program.

Athletic Director Joseph

Palmieri opposes the proposal because he thinks it is the job of the boosters and public relations.

The proposal was sent to the Steering Committee to be put on the agenda at a later date.

Another proposal was introduced to the assembly by Irma Pittroff, of admissions and records, recommending a committee be formed to study ways in which All-College Day could be improved.

The committee will be assigned to establish a well-planned All-College Day each year, to enlist more student support, and declare one day each quarter an All-College Day.

Ms. Pittroff said All-College Day now is not serving the purpose it was intended to do.

'Promises, Promises'

opens 4-day run May 23

Neil Simon's "Promises, Promises," will be presented by the CD Performing Arts Department May 23 through 26 at 8:15 p.m. in the Convocation Center. It will be directed by Craig Berger.

The musical is adapted from Billy Wilder's "The Apartment" and tells the story of Chuck Baxter, a spineless opportunist, who tries to climb the corporate ladder in New York City through allowing his small apartment to be used by the married executives of his company for their sub-rosa dates. Fran Kubelik is in love with Mr. Sheldrake, and the couple use Chuck's apartment regularly. When Fran discovers that Sheldrake has no intention of divorcing his wife and marrying her, she attempts to commit suicide, and as a result she and Chuck discover they love each other.

The music is by Burt Bacharach, with lyrics by Hal David. In addition to the title song, perhaps the best-known musical number is "I'll Never Fall in Love Again". Choreography is by Denny Taylor, of Chicago.

The cast includes, in major parts: Joe Gilbert, Glen Ellyn, as Chuck Baxter; Ron Henry, Oak Park, as Jeff Sheldrake; Ann Berger, Glen Ellyn, as Fran Kubelik; Tracy Engle, Carol Stream, as Ed Dobitch; Stephanie Smith, Wood Dale, Sylvia Gilhooley; James Wright, Wheaton, as Mike Kirkeby; Richard Albright, LaGrange, Dr. Dreyfuss; Joyce Townsend, Wheaton, Marge MacDougall.

Minor parts will be played by Susan Hoyt, Jim Belushi, Dianne Pollard, Paul Klapper, Abby Augsberger, Susan Yackley and Larry Papacek.

Lead dancers will be Susan Hoyt, Dianne Pollard and Lynn Romei. Orchestra voices will be Kathy Treland, Martha Wienecke, Mary Ann Maly and Jill Halgrimson.

Members of the ensemble will be Abby Augsberger, Larry Bast, Frank Iuro, Mark Materna, Marion Rasfeld and Hugh Wallace.

Urge program planning for fall

If you plan to return as a C/D student in the fall quarter, you are encouraged to contact your adviser before the close of this quarter to plan your fall quarter courses and obtain the signed program planning sheet that degree- and certificate-seeking students are asked to present at the time of registration.

Seeing your adviser at this time will help you avoid problems when you do register. Many advisers are not on campus during the summer, when fall quarter registration occurs, so they are not available for pre-registration advising. Meeting with your adviser before the end of the spring quarter eliminates searching for an adviser to sign your program planning sheet during the summer, when not many are present.

In order to make an appointment with your adviser, contact him directly. If you are unable to reach him, contact the office of the provost of the small college to which he belongs.

Delayed hot air rises May 11

Capt. Ben (The Beard) Schlossberg has rescheduled his free balloon concert at C/D for this Friday night, May 11, at 8 o'clock.

Ron Nilsson, assistant to the director of student activities, said that due to an accident, which ruined six panels of the balloon during an ascension at the University of Nevada, Reno, Schlossberg was forced to cancel his appearance here last Friday night.

The temperature regulator and stabilizer are now being repaired. The weather was very rough in Reno last week, causing the top to come off the balloon.

There is a burner in the balloon which heats air that expands the balloon. The burner was going when the balloon collapsed inward, causing it to catch fire and burn the panels.

Nilsson said the radio stations were very cooperative in giving out information to the public on the change in plans. WLS, WAIT, WMAW, WCFL and WDAI were among the stations announcing the cancellation. WDAI radio personalities will be here this Friday night as previously promised. Should it rain, the balloon will go up on Saturday or Sunday night.

DLL: An Alternative

As Lillian Petronio, reporter, discovered a few weeks ago, occasionally one will come across some information which isn't exactly newsworthy or, because of the commuter nature of C/D, while it may be new to the reporter, isn't new to The Courier. Such is the case with the DLL.

So far, The Courier has run a feature on the DLL almost every fall quarter. With certain stories though, it is extremely difficult to do justice to the subject because of lack of interest, time, or the complexity of the story. The DLL, because of the many opportunities it affords a student, is definitely a complex subject.

Until this quarter, I, like many other students, I'm sure, knew the DLL existed and knew that one could take individualized classes through it, but never really gave it any serious thought. It was there, it was an alternative to the classroom and it was, in my case at least, entirely overlooked.

Leaving out the why's, I somehow got enrolled in a course offered through the DLL this quarter and I now feel like kicking myself for not checking into the DLL sooner.

What courses are offered isn't that important right now (this information is available in the DLL, M110) what is important though, at least in my view, is that it is an alternative to the drudgery and predictability experienced in certain traditional classroom type courses.

With the DLL, the classroom is where you make it. At the beginning of the quarter the student and the instructor sit down, check the material to be covered and map out a plan of action. From then on it's up to the student to achieve the goal set at the beginning of the quarter. The instructor is available for help and consultation but the responsibility of knowing the material is up to the student. In short there are no lectures and no grade school type question-and-answer games.

The DLL can be an interesting alternative to the classroom but it could also be disastrous — if the right attitude toward learning isn't there. If you've got the initiative to set a goal and stick to achieving it, it just might be worth your while to check into the DLL next quarter.

Degree Costs Going Up

In light of the recent educational tax hike defeat, I suggest to the administration that next time they seek a tax hike to better this district's junior college facility, a pamphlet be sent out to area residents explaining the value of C/D to the area. I don't mean just any B.S. but specifically some quotes from the February issue of the Moneysworth consumer newsletter. In its article entitled, "A Short Course on Financing a College Education," some very important and interesting facts are brought out about the middle class parent and his ability to provide a college education for his kids. The following are selected quotes that might catch the taxpayer's eye and teach him something:

"If you're a middle-class parent, financing your child's college education this fall will be infinitely more difficult than ever before — in fact, it may be nearly impossible.

"An estimated two-thirds of all U.S. colleges and universities, about 1,650 of them, are on shaky ground. Private schools are shutting down or merging with other unstable institutions regularly. And a dozen large public universities, that were in the black five years ago, are operating on deficits now."

"This year the average tuition and living expenses will run nearly $3,000 per student, and at big-name private schools, that figure can be almost doubled. With these increases, economists now predict that a bachelor's degree in 1980 will cost about $32,000.

"Cost cutting begins with your choice of schools. The two-year community or junior college provides an excellent way of saving money without sacrificing quality. By living at home and attending a community college, you can reduce your outlay $1,200 a year over a state university. Since less than 50 per cent of all students graduate from the school they start at, it can't hurt to start at the lower tuition-level junior college, then transfer to the university with an adequately impressive name."

These excerpts are just a small part of the article, but I think you get the idea. If you want to save money on college, send your kid to a local community college. If you want your kid to get a good college education, support that local community college.

Bitch Box

To whom it may concern,

We were in the Omega Lounge on the night of Friday, April 6th, and we decided to exercise our artistic talents by writing on the blackboard. Whereupon, some janitor came in and threatened our lives if we continued to write upon said board. If we can't write on the board, why the hell is it there? Since when do janitor's have authority over my freedom of expression? No offense to the janitor.

Dear Board writer,

The school closes at 5:00 p.m. on Fridays and the janitors don't have a lot of time to clean up. If you want to write on your lounge's black board please do it in the day time during regular campus hours.

John Walton
ASB Vice President

To whom it may concern,

My car has been hit three times while parked in the C/D lots. Only once did the person have enough courage to admit he hit my car. First, what, if anything, can be done about these clods that go around hitting people? Second, what has happened to honesty among our wonderful student body? Third, how do those brainless creeps get drivers licenses?

In reply to your three questions: First, if people would be willing to get involved, more of these parking accident drivers would be identified. We have had people turn in license numbers of guilty parties, but often these accidents are witnessed but ignored. Second, in my opinion, we have an honest student body as a whole, and this also includes the faculty and staff, but our concern and yours is with the dishonest persons, of which we have our share. Third, that's a good question, but I suppose one reason is that they drive one way to get their license and another way after.

Courier Feedback

When the reader feedback questionnaire was published last week in The Courier it was hoped that at least 25 or 50 interested persons would take the ten minutes necessary to fill it out and drop it off in the Student Activities Office. Never was it expected that 150 or even 200 people would take the time to let us know how we did all year. A number so great as 200 was beyond our wildest dreams.

Now that the results are in though, I can see that any complaints we received throughout the year were completely unfounded. Apparently everyone is satisfied with The Courier and has been all year. There were no suggestions for improving it. Any complaints we hear from now until the end of the year then, will go in one ear and right out the other.

So, let this be a public notice to anyone who didn't bother to take the time to fill out a questionnaire: When asked for an opinion you didn't have one. Don't bother us with one now.

'Degrees kicked around again

The number of degrees, requirements for these degrees and transferability of credits to higher institutions of learning were among the subjects discussed at the Instruction Council hearing Monday, May 7.

The meeting was heavily attended by faculty and administration. Both groups agreed that a definite need exists for clarification of what constitutes a degree for C/D graduates.

Senate urges quality control

The Faculty Senate Tuesday passed three recommendations concerning quality control of education.

It recommended to Dr. Rodney Berg, college president, that he not deny a student the A.A. degree if specialized courses are part of his curriculum.

It recommended to Berg, the dean of instruction, college provosts and the Instruction Council that the Welfare Council be given a current copy of the detailed budget and that each faculty member have a current course description on file for every course he/she teaches.

The Senate also voted to support a request of Irma Pitroff, Admissions and Records, to the Representative Assembly. She asked that the quarterly All-College Day be evaluated.

Class to give theater readings

Two readings will be performed by Jodie Briggs' Reader's Theatre class next week in the Coffee House, at noon Monday, May 14 and at noon Wednesday, May 16.

Monday's presentation will be The Murder of Lidici, by Edna St. Vincent Millay, and directed by Bob Jackson. Wednesday the class will read The Buck and the Resi, by John Carlino.

The students involved in the presentations have been performing for various clubs, groups and schools in the area and have been very well received.

All students, faculty and staff are invited to attend the free Coffee House presentations.

Dr. John Anthony, vice president, programs, urged that the board direct its attention to working with the faculty to spell out specifically the number of hours needed and the courses accepted by the four-year colleges.

Dr. Rodney Berg, college president, stated that "general education courses must be required, even if the student does not plan on going to a four-year institution."

Donald Dame, counselor, asked; "What is general education?"

Dr. Berg also brought up the question of student intent. Dame agreed that a student entering C/D must not only have the intention of receiving a certain degree but also must have the content or specific requirements to attain that degree.

All agreed that advisory committees were essential to give the student full knowledge of courses needed for transferability. A questionnaire will be forthcoming to the faculty asking their opinions on all the subjects discussed at this hearing.

Don't change your summer plans

If you're going to spend a lot of this coming summer around the water—sailing and swimming—you'll want the protection of Tampax tampons.

Girls have frequently wondered about swimming during those difficult days. Old-fashioned napkins make swimming impossible, but with Tampax tampons the message has always been: "Go ahead and swim." You're dependably protected internally. And you never have to worry about anything showing under swimsuits because internal protection is invisible protection.

So don't change your summer plans just because your period might interfere. Tampax tampons let you sail, swim, water-ski, sunbathe—just like any other day of the month.

Energy or 'ignorance' crisis --

Fuller display at Museum

By Chuck Maney

A traveling exhibition, "The Design Science of R. Buckminster Fuller," opened Monday, May 7, at the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago.

The 77-year-old Fuller and Ann, his wife of 56 years, were honored at a luncheon marking the preview of the display which will be open until Aug. 31.

The man is an active architect, designer, educator, engineer, mathematician, planner, philosopher and poet. His work began in Chicago in the mid-'20's when he dealt with "making money or making sense." He opted for the latter.

Fuller talked of his many years of individualized labor. His conscious choice of investigating the potential limits of human understanding and the scope of his work are hinted at by the 4,000 square-foot exhibit. Featured there are two geodesic domes (Fuller's claim to "fame"), a 30-foot tensegrity tower, models of proposed dwelling units and a car, built in 1933, with front-wheel drive, rear wheel steering, a rear engine, a speed of 120 miles an hour and a turning radius of one foot.

What makes Fuller so special is the amazing scope of his knowledge of the universe (often it takes an hour to educate an audience sufficiently to understand the answer to a question), his innovative solutions to problems and the intensity of sincerity which he treats the people he meets.

His statement prepared for the press reads:

"I seek through comprehensive anticipatory design science and its reduction to physical practices to reform the environment instead of trying to reform humans, being intent thereby to accomplish prototyped capabilities of doing more with less."

He scoffed at the mention of an energy crisis. "Rather," he said, "we have a crisis of ignorance. With about a $3 adjustment to the carburetor (in cars) they can be converted to alcohol burning which is cheaper, more efficient and less polluting."

From there he launched into a detailed explanation of energy structures and their cost to comprehensive World Resource Planning. Fuller also made a strong denunciation of linear corporate thinking which allows wastes like steel mills pouring as much sulphur into the atmosphere as is mined yearly for other uses.

Dr. John R. Spencer, director of the museum program for the National Endowment for the Arts, said that Fuller's display has "the cultural and aesthetic intent" of merging art, technology and life.

Dr. Gault has seen a lot --

From barnstorming to history

By Steve Bratton

Teaching history for 21 years might seem to be a pretty placid life after an exciting stint in the U.S. Army during World War II and being the son of a stunt swimmer who barnstormed across the country for fun and profit.

But Dr. Lon Gault of the C/D history department enjoys what he's doing now.

Dr. Gault

Born and raised in Clinton, Iowa, Dr. Gault became especially interested in wrestling in high school. One match that stands out in his mind was when he pinned an opponent in 21 seconds. From high school Dr. Gault attended Indiana University. He became interested in track there and continued running into graduate school at the University of Iowa where he became the A.A.U. state champion in the 440-yard dash.

After college Dr. Gault went into the army where he was assigned to the 23rd special troops in France. In his particular company, the 3132 Signal Service Co., he was promoted to corporal.

Of particular interest was the nature of the company's operations. Basically speaking, its job was to deceive the enemy. For example, to give the enemy the impression that there was heavy equipment in the area, special half tracks were moved up to the front lines equipped with 500 watt amplifier. Wire tapes of recordings of tanks, trucks loading and unloading of gas tanks were played.

Another part of Dr. Gault's division was involved in the deployment of fake tanks, trucks, jeeps and halftracks to give the enemy the impression of a large division. All of these dummy vehicles were really just inflatable balloons. The men involved in these operations many times would go so far as changing all insignia on both their uniforms and vehicles to deceive the enemy into thinking they were other companies.

As a boy Dr. Gault was fortunate enough to travel in 47 different states because of his father's part-time hobby, stunt swimming.

Andrew C. Gault, his father, barnstormed across the country in the 1930s performing such feats as swimming across the Mississippi River with his hands tied behind his back and his feet tied. Another stunt involved pulling a boat filled with five or six people across a river with hands and feet tied or swimming with folding wooden chairs tied to his arms and a gunny sack over his head. One other interesting feat involved racing a horse on foot 19 miles and winning.

All in all, quite a unique life for one of C/Ds distinguished instructors of history.

Child Co-op

open in summer

The C/D children's Free Co-op will operate over the summer quarter.

The Co-op is located on campus and is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. For every three hours a child spends in the Co-op, a parent gives one hour of time to the center.

140 voices to be heard

The annual Commencement Concert will be held Sunday evening, June 3, at 8:15 p.m. in the Convocation Center.

The C/D Community Chorus, numbering about 140 voices, will sing "A German Requiem" by Johannes Brahms, accompanied by a full symphony orchestra of players from the Chicago Symphony and Lyric Arts Orchestras.

The Requiem was composed by Brahms in 1886. It is not a liturgical requiem, but is set to words from the Bible selected by the composer. It is essentially an optimistic composition, and each Flying feet took over the track at North Central College last Saturday in the first annual "special olympics" for handicapped youngsters conducted by the Naperville Park District. Leadership was provided by recreation students in Recreation 130 at the College of DuPage.

An estimated 150 participants representing six municipal, voluntary, and private recreation agencies entered a variety of track and swimming events witnessed by a crowd of about 150 to 200 spectators.

DuPage students filled a variety of roles with Chuck Gohla dressed as the College of DuPage dog mascot. Sheri Bird in a pink rabbit's outfit gave free refreshments to the participants. Judy Hallmark, Joyce Poe, and Sue Saffo were group leaders, and Teri Mott and Susan Novak gave out awards to the winners.

Randy Pratt, Elaine Wyner, Denise Sedlacek, Vicky Waldron, Dan Nixon, and Jay Shepler acted

as recorders, while Terry Farber, Pat Gallahue, Rod Aiken, and Debra Waldt were event judges. Nora Cappelleri and Glynn Davidson entertained the non-participants in conducting a low organized games session. Carol Cedergren and Jane Wittman acted in the capacity as meet timers.

Netmen win regional, eye finals

The College of DuPage's powerhouse tennis team romped to their greatest victory of the season last weekend as they won the Region IV tennis championship, qualifying them for the national finals.

The singles final was a coach's dream for C/D's Dave Webster as one DuPage co-captain Jim Love, met the other, Pat Norkett. Love won 6-1, 6-4 but that was of little consequence as both will play in the nationals June 5-9 in Ocala, Florida.

Love, the top-seeded player in the elite field of 58, advanced to the semi-finals with easy victories over Roger Junge of Oakton, Jeff Rud of Harper, and John Cheli of Illinois Valley. In the semis, he met highly-regarded Jim Johnson of Lewis and Clark.

Johnson, the surprise player of the tournament, carried a 15-0 record into his match with Love including a win over the University of Missouri's top player. At 6'11" and 220 pounds, Johnson had sheer power behind his strokes. He moved well for a big man and played with a skillful determination.

Love played the role of giant-killer however as he won the first set 6-3. Johnson took the second set 7-6 on a tiebreaker and then snatched a 3-1 lead in the deciding match. Love evened it up at 3-3 and then, using a booming overhead serve, swept Johnson off the court to win 6-4.

Meanwhile, Norkett was staging a one-man show of his own. In his first match, with Joe Falk of Illinois Valley, he lost the first set and had to rally behind a strong net game to win the second set. He won the final set to clinch the match and then continued to advance by defeating Jim Ingols of Lewis and Clark.

His third match was against second-seeded Mark Umbarger of Lake Land. Norkett used lobs and passing shots to slip past him and then disposed of Rock Valley's Dick Saunders in the semi-finals.

Norkett's loss to teammate Love in the finals was his first of the year. The freshman from Itasca was unseeded in the tournament but he scrambled his way into the championship round by "making the shots he had to", in the words of Coach Webster.

The DuPage doubles team of Rich Smeeth and Doug Carlson played well and contributed to the team championship before being downed by number-four seeded Belleville 4-6, 7-5, 4-6.

Coach Dave Webster said of his squad's performance at the regionals, "It was a great win, by a group of superb competitors. Not only are they blue chip tennis players, but a fine group of young men. They are a real credit to the institution they represent."

Webster also paid tribute to the other regular team members. "Four men won the championship, but it took nine men to make us the team that we are. Greg Bright, Mike Fink, Bill Sieroe, Greg Viskant, and Dan Logan are also members of the championship team."

Tracksters win 3rd N4C title

The College of DuPage track team clinched its third N4C championship in five years with wins over Illinois Valley and nonconference opponent Kennedy-King in a double-dual meet at Lisle on Wednesday, May 2.

C/D defeated both teams easily, downing Kennedy-King 97-38 and Illinois Valley 105-36. Friday DuPage traveled to Champaign for the Parkland Invitational, a tuneup for this weekend's Region IV meet at Knox College.

Coach Ron Ottoson feels his team's chances are good in the regional, with the toughest competition coming from Parkland.

So far this season only one member of the DuPage squad has qualified for the nationals, that being Mike Maenner. Ottoson expects several others to qualify in the near future.

Among the possibilities are Steve Ziolkowski in the quarter mile, Don Fash in the half mile, Paul Zinni in the pole vault, and Rich Walker in the javelin. The 440 and mile relay teams also have a chance.

Chaparrals split twinbill

The College of DuPage baseball team split a doubleheader with nonconference foe Kennedy-King last Saturday to extend their season record to 13-6.

The Chaparrals managed only three hits in the opener, dropping their fifth straight game 4-1. The lone C/D score came in the second inning on a single by Mike Pinns and a triple by catcher Tom Dingle. At the time it put DuPage ahead but Kennedy-King pushed three across in the third to gain the victory.

DuPage rallied in game two to win by the same score they lost by in the opener, 4-1. Pinns continued his hot hitting, going 2-for-3 and that combined with the three-hit pitching of Craig Casino paved the way for the Chaparrals' 13th triumph.

C/D will play host to Joliet this afternoon at 3:30 and will have a doubleheader at home against Oakton on Saturday.
